This toolkit was designed by teens, for teens.

It’s for YOU to have the tools and tips, right at your fingertips, to help you live your best life.

Mental Health is part of our nature - it’s as normal as our physical health.

We all have our ups and downs. Sometimes it’s hard to know what’s normal and what we need to be concerned about.

The Youth Mental Health Toolkit has answers and resources.

We hope you enjoy using it as much as we had developing it.

“Having the resources necessary in order to cultivate a safe mindspace should be a universal experience, and it was with that in mind that we created this toolkit.”

- Arantza Pedraza Espinoza, Student at Park City High School

HEALTHY BOUNDARIES:
"No." Is A Complete Sentence

5 TIPS CHECKLIST

1. Role play saying “no” and “no thank you”.

2. Clarify your values and what you stand for.
   • Think of 3 people you admire and why. What are the values they exhibit? Example: kindness, courage and honesty.
   • Think of 3 people who you don’t like and why. What are the behaviors they exhibit? How do these behaviors show you what you value? Example: "Diana never follows through on our plans, she cancels last minute”. Your reaction to Diana’s behavior is illuminating your value of commitment and/or integrity.
   • You can find a complete list of values here.

3. Trust your gut- if it’s a no - it’s a no.

4. Don’t be afraid to say no- IT IS OK to say no.

5. Remember - being able to say “no” sometimes is an important part of establishing healthy boundaries. You don’t owe anyone an explanation. “I don’t want to” is more than enough.

RECIPES: Zero in on These Brain Boosters
Research suggests that omega-3 fatty acids found in oily fish, nuts, and seeds help reduce the risk of depression and anxiety. Spices like turmeric may also reduce symptoms of depression by reducing brain inflammation. Yogurt, fresh sauerkraut, kefir, and kimchi are fermented foods containing “good bacteria” that add balance to the naturally occurring bacteria in your gut known as the microbiome. The microbiome plays a role in brain development, behavior, and mood. A diet rich in fruits and veggies is associated with higher levels of happiness. And if you need a treat after all that healthy eating, dark chocolate has been found to reduce symptoms of stress.

NUTS AND SEEDS: Add Them to Everything
Walnuts, flaxseeds, chia seeds are also good sources of healthful omega-3 fatty acids if you consume them regularly. Sprinkle chopped nuts and ground seeds on everything from hot or cold breakfast cereals to fruit and vegetable salads to stir-fries. Add them to the blender when making smoothies. Stir them into pancake, waffle, and muffin batters. Soak 1 tablespoon of chia seeds in 3 tablespoons of water until thickened, and use as an egg substitute in baked goods. You can also use ground walnuts and chia seeds alone or combined with bread crumbs as a coating or topping for baked seafood or chicken. for baked seafood or chicken.

When you are not sure you can trust the adults around you - even your school counselor, who else can I reach out to?

5 TIPS TO FINDING A TRUSTWORTHY ADULT

A trusted adult is one who...

1. ...is non-judgmental.
2. ...doesn’t give you the answer - they help you find the answer for yourself.
3. ...doesn’t ask you to keep secrets, break boundaries or participate in any activity that is immoral or illegal.
4. ...models healthy behavior and values in their life.
5. ...you feel safe and comfortable with in their company.
WHERE TO GET HELP: Self Advocacy

FINDING YOUR TRUSTED THERAPIST - THE INTERVIEW PROCESS
Empowering you to advocate for yourself when finding a counselor.

1. Ask your friends and trusted adults for recommendations.

2. Explain to me how you will protect my privacy? What can be kept confidential and what you are required to report to my parents, school admin, or law enforcement or ________?

3. If your therapist is trying to solve your problems or give you answers, find another therapist.

4. If your gut tells you it’s not a good fit - then it’s not a good fit. They can be a good trustworthy therapist but you just don’t jibe.

5. Find out about insurance, payment and costs. Are there scholarship or sliding fee options? (my parents don’t have a lot of money but I really need this).

6. Ask them why they got into therapy

Thoughts from Arantza

We’ve all heard of how important it is to take care of our mental and emotional health, but doing so when life is so hectic and draining can seem like a monumental task at times. Other times, we just don’t have access to the means we need, or don’t know how to implement the information we do have. That is why this toolkit was created, for teens and by teens. Since the mind is like a garden, having the instruments necessary to tend to it empowers us to take care of all aspects of our health. Having the resources necessary in order to cultivate a safe mindscape should be a universal experience, and it was with that in mind that we created this toolkit. No matter how difficult life can get sometimes, remember that your mind is a powerful yet delicate thing you always ought to take care of... but you do not have to do it alone! We hope that this toolkit is helpful to you. Always remember that you are cherished, appreciated and loved.

Kind regards,

- Arantza Pedraza Espinoza,
  Student at Park City High School
